ORDER

As stated at the hearing on May 22, 2014, the Court will try the Huawei case on June 2, 2014, immediately following jury selection. Jury selection for the ZTE case will be on June 9, 2014, and trial will be held on June 23, 2014. If the Huawei case settles, then the ZTE case will be called for trial on June 2, 2014 without delay or continuance. The parties' trial times for each case are as follows:

Jury Selection	30 minutes per side
Opening Statement	45 minutes per side
Direct/Cross	12 hours per side
Closing Argument	1 hour per side

These times are inclusive of all issues, jury and non-jury. It is the parties' responsibility to budget their time accordingly. Additionally, the parties may use some of their time to provide a short introduction before each witness. However, the Court cautions the parties to use their time wisely and to not use this time to make any closing-like arguments before the close of evidence.

So ORDERED and SIGNED this 30th day of May, 2014.
